

TO THE DOGS

Rover ready for his closeup? If so, he may prefer the less ruff art of portraiture to photography. Should that be the case, artist Roger Henry can oblige the most demanding Dalmatian, the proudest poodle, even the bulldog with a drool problem only its owner could love. With a degree in fine arts, Henry, whose first dog portrait was of his own pooch Aubrie in 1992, has since painted quite the pack—pedigrees and mutts the world over—from a cocker belonging to a marquis in Paris, to a Sydney real estate mogul's mixed breed (don't dare call it a mutt) and a canine commission to paint Bruiser, Elle Woods' Chihuahua, for Legally Blonde 2. Should your miniature Schnauser like a miniature portrait, he can do that, too. And he'll also do cats. Full-size portraits and miniatures from $6,500. Available by calling 213.840.1104, or visiting www.rogerhenry.com. —Andrew Myers